

GERMAN LOSS IS 25,000

INVADERS ASK FOR AN ARMISTICE OF ONE DAY

WARSAW IS SEIZED AFTER THE RUSSIANS LEFT THE CITY

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, August 7.—Warsaw, Russia, is occupied by German troops and the Russian general staff abandoned the city, says an unofficial dispatch received by Secretary Bryan today. He refused to give the source of information.

GERMANS TAP WIRELESS IN NOVA SCOTIA.

(By International News Service.)

SYDNEY, N. S., August 7.—Two German spies were arrested near the transatlantic wireless station early today. A full wireless outfit, several bombs and a quantity of dynamite was found. Additional troops were immediately summoned here and placed about the wireless station. Dispatches intercepted by wireless operators indicate that messages had been sent the German cruiser Dresden giving the location of French and British ships in the Atlantic.

THOUSANDS COMING AS FAST AS SHIPS CAN BE SUPPLIED

REFUGEES FLOCK TO SEAPORTS LOOKING FOR TRANSPORTATION HOME.

(By International News Service.)

LONDON, August 7.—It is expected that 15,000 American refugees from Europe will sail for the United States within the present week. About 2,500 arrived from Paris during the past 24 hours, bringing the total coming here from the French capital since war began up to 7,500. The American liner Philadelphia sailed from Southampton with 2,000 yesterday and today the Celtic took 2,600 homeward bound Americans.

WAITING FOR REINFORCEMENTS.

(By International News Service.)

BRUSSELS, August 7.—The German attack on Liege has ceased, according to information received at the war office. Invaders withdrew to the left bank of the Meuse awaiting reinforcements. Four hundred thousand more Germans are reported marching on Liege.

BATTLE ON ADRIATIC.

(By International News Service.)

BRINDISI, Italy, August 7.—The first naval battle of the Adriatic was fought between the Austrian cruiser Taurus and a flotilla of British torpedo destroyers. The Taurus crippled, put in here, to escape pursuers.

CAPTURES TWO TOWNS.

(By International News Service.)

PARIS, August 7.—French troops invaded Germany today and captured two towns in Alsace-Lorraine.

Sawdust and chloride of magnesium are used in Germany to form an extremely hard artificial wood.

Bonanza War News From Hearst Papers

To furnish readers of the Bonanza with the very latest and most comprehensive reports of the war in Europe the full service of the International News association, representing all the Hearst newspapers, has been secured and the first installment appears this afternoon. The regular service of the Associated Press remains and the International is taken to supplement the reports of the greatest news gathering agency on earth. The International service receives its information from the leading centers of the continent and the British Isles and with this well known enterprise of the Hearst papers there is no possibility of the Bonanza missing the earliest reports of any event of importance.

U. S. Urged to Purchase 25,000,000 Ounces Silver

An effort will be made by the Nevada Mine Operators' association to prevail on the government to buy 25,000,000 ounces of silver at the last market quotations as a means of protecting the mines of this and other silver producing states. A most encouraging reply was received and it is probable the matter will be acted upon after the funeral of Mrs. Wilson, as the secretary of the treasury is precluded from attending to official duties. The telegram from Tonopah was as follows:

"On account of the silver exchange being closed and no prospects of the same being opened in the immediate future, the silver producers of the state of Nevada are unable to find a market for their silver. Most of the silver mines throughout the state will have to close down unless money can be secured from the sale of their product with which to continue operations. The Nevada Mine Operators' association has today requested me to wire you to use your influence to have congress pass an act authorizing the secretary of the treasury to purchase twenty-five million ounces of silver at the last market quotation. By doing so the various mines throughout this state, as well as other states, will be able to market their silver, and thereby get money with which to continue operations. The situation is certainly very critical for the silver mines throughout the country, and the relief suggested above would be of inestimable benefit to all the operators, as well as the miners working in the silver mines. Should no relief come very soon, a great many thousands of men working in the silver mines of the country will be out of employment. Kindly furnish copies of this telegram to Senator Newlands and Congressman Roberts, also others who may be interested."

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.

"JOHN G. KIRCHEN, President."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 1914.

"John G. Kirchen, President."

"Pres't Nevada Mine Operators' Ass'n,"

"Tonopah, Nevada."

"Your telegram of sixth relative to precarious condition of market for silver and the unfortunate effect of mines of the state and requesting that action be taken to obtain purchase of twenty-five million ounces by the treasury was received today. Had the telegram read to the senate and together with other western senators discussed existing emergency. We are assured will have active cooperation of treasury department. Will take matter up with McAdoo for definite action at earliest possible moment."

"KEY PITTMAN."

"WASHINGTON, August 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House because of the death of the first lady of the land. All flags in the city are at half mast and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, are at work in the executive offices."

President Wilson and daughters remained in grief-stricken seclusion, the former denying himself to all except his family and secretary. Final plans have not been made, but it is expected the burial will be at Rome, Ga., the girlhood home of Mrs. Wilson, or at Princeton, where she spent so many happy years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Word came today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott, is ill in California and cannot come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Prof. Stockton, and son are expected tomorrow. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly. It is the president's desire that the senate and house do not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death.